

THAT REPUBLICAN RALLY.

A Foraker Meeting With Foraker Absent.

There Was a Fair Sized Parade.

Plenty of Hay Rackets and Red Fire—Ten Candidates for the Post Office and One Hundred Boys—Speeches by Gen. Hall and Big Jones.

The Republican parade Wednesday evening was a very creditable demonstration, but not half up to expectations. An organized effort was made to get up an overwhelming show. Special trains were run from Carrollton, Alliance and Massillon; also Canal Fulton. Gov. Foraker was advertised and the people were not notified by the committee that Gov. Foraker was not to be present.

One of the finest high bred Kentucky saddlers had been selected for Gov. Foraker to ride at the head of the parade. With that spirit of enthusiasm and progress which has always characterized the News-Democrat, we had a cut made of Foraker and this morning equine darling, which he would have ridden through the streets of Canton in a sun blaze of red fire, had not an unkind fate prostrated him with nervous prostration. Here he is:

FORAKER AND HIS CHARGER.

In the parade were the Grand Army Band of Canton, the Harmonia band of Massillon, the Morgan band of Alliance, the Marlboro Drum Corps, the Massillon Drum Corps and the City Band of Canton. The meeting cost the Republican committee over $1,000, but that is a mere drop in the bucket, as they are long with booties. The parade was led by twenty-three men on horseback. The Alliance McKinley club marched with forty-one men in line. The McKinley club of Canton had thirty-eight, including Mr. Marvin of Akron, ex-Cleveland Press, Esq. Braden, and ten other candidates for the Canton post-office. Owing to the unusual dampness pervading the atmosphere they did not wear their linen dusters.

The club from the Dueser watch works numbered about 100, carrying a transparency, with the motto, "We will wind them up." A paper was circulated in the Dueser works recently for signatures of those who would parade. The question presented itself, whether this was to ascertain who would parade or who would not. There was quite an exuberance of red fire along the line of march and a profuse shower of sky rockets. The parade marched to the Tabernacle at 9 o'clock, and chairman Turner at 9:10 arose in his august gravity, with a sort of barn door, stentorian voice, read the doleful list of Vice Presidents. The following very able bodied gentlemen took seats on the platform: Judge Jos. Pence, Ex-Senator J. C. Snyder, Jr., S. B. Cook, Rev. Dr. Miller, Judge Fawcett, Clement Russell, Silas Williams, Col. Moore, Judge Whiting, Judge W. R. Day. Turner then arose and in a very loud voice asked if Mr. Dueser was in the house and if so to come forward and take seat on the rostrum. Mr. Dueser was not there.

Judge Day was announced as chairman. The Judge paid Gov. Foraker a high compliment, greatly regretted his absence and then announced Gen. Hall of Ohio. Of course the audience, most of whom expected to see the following distinguished orator.

THIS IS THE MAN THEY EXPECTED TO HEAR Instead of Gov. Foraker this is a correct picture of the man who was introduced.

GEN. HALL OF COLUMBUS, O.

Judge Day introduced Gen. Hall as from the State of Maine; this brought forth some cheers; but Judge Day made a mistake. Gen. Hall used to be collector at Danversville, Maine, twenty years ago, but he is now vice president of the Ohio & Western Coal and Iron Co., of the Rocking Valley, with his headquarters at Columbus. Owing to a highly restricted market, caused by a system called the Protective tariff, the furnace fires have all gone out of Gen. Hall's three big furnaces, and the coal mines are deserted, and the poor laborers are living on charity, with their wives and children in rags and wretchedness. Gen. Hall and the Ohio & Western Coal and Iron Co. has made an assignment, and that splendid company, that employed a small army of workmen, who prospered and earned their daily bread during the administration of Grover Cleveland are now either tramps or beggars, or working for their food among the small farmers of the Rocking valley. We speak now what we know. Gen. Hall is a good man, with a fine record as a soldier and he had too much respect for himself to talk tariff last night and he didn't do it. He lost his wad on the protective tariff in the Rocking Valley and in view of what he knows of the starvation and suffering in the Rocking valley today, it is to his credit that he refused to speak of the robber tariff to the laboring men of Canton. He made a speech on ancient history, told some quite broad stories, and pitched into Horace Greely, and puffed Gov. Foraker, quoted two verses of poetry and at midnight, then Judge Day introduced Big Jones as a very able man, who would talk at the tariff. It would be difficult to fittingly characterize Big Jones' speech. To say that it was the worst ever heard in the Tabernacle would perhaps be an exaggeration, but it was certainly a very creditable effort to gather an audience of 2,500 people, including 1,500 voters and 1,000 ladies, and as many boys, and then introduce such a man as Big Jones to instruct them. Why Jones is not a bad man far from it—but he knows nothing about the tariff, and everyone knows him knows it. No wonder men like Judge Day and Judge Pence felt humiliated that such a blustering nutcase should be allowed to play the part of front of 2,500 people to flounder for an hour and a quarter, without even stating one proposition correctly, or giving forth one sensible idea, that is vital to this campaign. After hearing Jones' speech, it is no wonder that the Hon. Lawrence T. Neal advised our Democrats yesterday morning to get all the Democrats out to hear him, as his speech would make Democratic votes. Mr. Neal heard Big Jones' speech on Monday, and knew whereof he was speaking.

The News-Democrat gave Big Jones six propositions on the tariff for him to discuss. Of these six propositions Jones did not read one, and only touched upon one. We stated that no people could ever get rich by taxation, and that a tariff is a tax. How did Jones treat this? He indulged in a tirade of abuse, of the editor of the News-Democrat, who sat in the audience, and whom Jones attempted to annihilate by calling him an idiot, a traitor and other terms of reproach. After exhausting his somewhat extensive vocabulary of violent adjectives, Jones admitted that the tariff is a tax. This sounded very strange to a great many Republicans who have been led to think by Statesman McKinley that the tariff is not a tax on the American consumer, but a contribution by the foreigner who pays the same for the privilege of selling his goods and wares in the American market. After Jones had annihilated McKinley's favorite theory, much to the disgust of McKinley's admirers, he carefully avoided all the other propositions put to him by the News-Democrat. He touched not one of them.

We stated that a tariff tax is the most unjust of all taxes, because it is based on production or labor, and not on wealth, like all other taxes. As labor produces all wealth, why should labor be taxed, while the wealth that labor produces is not touched. Big Jones carefully avoided even reading this proposition. He dared not discuss it.

We gave him another proposition which he even failed to refer to. This is the proposition: Labor is the best paid, the world over, in countries with the lowest tariff taxes, everything else being equal. Compare wages in England with the wages in France, Germany, Italy or Austria, all protected countries.

We made another proposition that Big Jones dared not discuss, and that is that all or nearly all the paupers that come to our shores come here from the highest protected countries of Europe.

We made him another proposition. If protection protects labor, why is it that our country has been going down in price every year in the United States since the robber war tariff has been in operation? He dare not touch even on this question. The statistics show that this is so.

We venture the opinion that there is not a youth, male or female in that magnificent establishment who does not know that we can beat the Swiss watches. We venture the opinion that there is not a watchmaker in the world because we make watches by machinery and the Swiss watches are made largely by piece work, and by hand work.

Who invented this machinery?

HOME RULE TO THE DOGS.

Not the Protective tariff, but the genius and inventive spirit of the American artisan. The Protective tariff had about as much to do with the invention of this marvelous and delicate machinery as Big Jones had in producing the mule industry of Kentucky. Now about the tariff on watches, everyone knows that the Mills bill does not disturb the watch industry a particle, and every watch worker and watch manufacturer knows it.

Having given the points that Big Jones attempted to make, let us refer to a few points that are quite vital to this campaign that Big Jones did not touch upon. He told the people of Canton that the Republican legislature of Ohio had violated the principle of home rule in 17 of the important cities of Ohio, and that Governor Wood was in absolute command through his so-called Boards of Control and the stranglehold of Cincinnati, of the Republican party of Ohio.

Big Jones did not tell of the corruption and stealing that had been developed in Foraker's pet Board of Control in Cincinnati. He did not tell of the patent ballot box, owned by the former Wood, who is now in absolute command through his so-called Boards of Control and the stranglehold of Cincinnati, of the Republican party of Ohio.

not to feel well, ever since. We give a bird's eye view of this remarkable exhibition.

HOW JIMMY CAMPBELL EXPLOITED THE BALLOT BOX FORGERY SCHEME.

Big Jones finished his speech at 10:30 P. M. with a proposition, namely, that McKinley for Congress for life. The audience felt relieved when he quit, as evidenced by the enthusiastic silence which followed the closing sentence. Then the audience filed out and the $1,000 meeting was over. It did not make a vote. Vote the Democratic ticket.

SOMETHING MYSTERIOUS

In the sudden disappearance of Contractor Binder—thought to have been foully dealt with.

Several days ago an account was given in these columns of the sudden departure from this city of Charles Binder, a contractor who has been engaged in business in this city for some time past. It has since been learned that on the day of his disappearance he had in his possession almost one thousand dollars, several hundred of which had been received from John C. Dueser and the balance he had drawn from one of the banks of this city. After getting this money ostensibly for the purpose of paying his employees and various debts which he owed here in the city, he did pay to Herman Bros. a bill of over one hundred dollars which he owed them for doing slating for him. He also paid one of his painters about twenty-five dollars, after which not the slightest trace of him can be found. His family in Cleveland claim that they have not heard anything whatever from him since a few days before he left Canton. He then stated to his wife, who was sitting along all right here and would have steady work all winter. It seems very strange that if he intended to defraud his creditors he should not have taken it with him. It looks very much as if he might have been done away with some way, having so much money on his person.

$10,000 DAMAGES

Wanted For False Importment and Injury to Character.

Late this Thursday afternoon two petitions were filed in Common Pleas Court, which add another chapter to the Phil P. Haubert trouble at Alliance. It will be remembered that in the early part of the month of September Philip Haubert went to the residence of Johanna Hammer at Alliance, where he had always been stopping. Late at night three policemen, Henry Grimes, Wm. G. Miller and Frank Stanley, went to the residence and arrested him on the charge of adultery. He was put in prison and afterwards acquitted of the charge. He has since been arrested and they were bound over to court by Justice Ringler.

Through their attorney James Sterling, Phil. H. Haubert has recovered $10,000 damages each. The former is for false arrest and imprisonment and the latter for injury to his character. The plaintiffs' friends claim they have a good case. Mr. Haubert is a most estimable citizen of Canton.

WAS HE ROBBED?

The Death of John Carney the Subject of a Searching Investigation.

As yet Coroner Schofer has rendered no verdict as to the death of John Carney who was killed at the P. F. W. & C. depot Monday night. There has been some developments in the case that are being investigated. When poor Carney wandered about the depot and visited various saloons, he had a twenty dollar bill. When searched by the Coroner in presence of a News-Democrat reporter he had thirty cents in his pocket book, and one dollar, consisting of four quarters, in another pocket. He also had two tickets to New Castle, Pa. Why did he have two? Had he a friend or an enemy? Was he robbed and then thrown on the track? These are questions that naturally present themselves and the officer in charge is probing the matter to the bottom. From the testimony so far produced Carney was undoubtedly killed by a bullet fired from the depot. He was in the habit of carrying all his money in his pocket book, and that a stray dollar was found in another part of his person and that he was excited and nervous at the investigation is being pushed and the matter will be sifted in detail.

FORAKER'S SICKNESS.

It Looks Like Working the Sympathy Dodge.

The Black Diamond Railroad Scheme.

(Plain Dealer Special.)

COLUMBUS, October 30.—One of the most ludicrous comedies ever enacted in Ohio politics is the sickness of Gov. Foraker and the manner of its management. The idea of Charles Kurtz, the governor's private secretary, playing the role of a physician and issuing daily bulletins on the governor's condition is enough to make the average citizen smile. In the mean time the governor's attending physician is never heard from. Occasionally "Dr. Kurtz" says something about "his physician" but the doctor himself is not saying anything at present about the condition of his patient. It is understood that "Dr. Kurtz" will announce soon that his patient has had a relapse and Chairman Conger will send out instructions to make the resolution of sympathy stronger. The governor has been attending to the routine and general business of his office at home since last Friday, and while it is reported that he is making the rounds of the governor's continued illness.

Gov. Foraker's connection with a buncle game known as the Black Diamond railroad system has not been explained. The pressure has become so great that the governor sent Adjutant General Axline to Zanesville for the purpose of consulting with A. H. Boone to see what could be done toward an explanation. Reports from Zanesville say that Mr. Axline has been in close consultation with Boone for two days.

A GOOD STORY.

Allen Cook's Hog Story on Governor Foraker.

The following is an illustration which Allen Cook, of Canton, gives of Foraker's greed for office. He is a professional office seeker. His appetite for office is absolutely insatiable. He reminds one of a big hog I once heard about. There was a big and a foreman hog in a watermelon patch. The old man and his son came out and saw the hog devouring all their melons. The old man said: "See here, Mr. Hog, we plant this patch and heed the vines, and you we don't propose to let you eat all the melons." "Well," said Mr. Hog, "I've been in here twice before and have eaten your melons, and I am the right to come in a third time and remain as long as I please. And then there are none of your melons left, melons like I can, anyhow." "Well," said the boys, "we'll see if you'll eat all the melons after we've done all the work," and they made at the hog and were about to throw him from the patch. But the hog opened his ponderous mouth, raised his bristles, showed his tusks and then, frothing mad he made at them and chased them to the nearest tree, and the boys both got up, but just as the old man was about to climb up the tree the hog grabbed him by the seat of the pants and jerked him back again. The old man seeing the dangerous predicament he was in, quickly reached around the tree and grabbed the hog by the tail. And there they were, the old man and the old hog, the old man by the seat of the pants and the old hog by the tail of the old man. And they were round and round the tree. The old man, gasping for breath, said: "Hog, for God sake come down and help me let loose of this hog." This is just the condition of the Republican party today. Foraker is the hog, the foreman third term hog that has chased such boys as Billy McKinley, John Sherman and Ben Butterworth up a tree, and has old Republicans, partly by the seat of the pants, while it manifestly yell for the boys to come down and help it let loose this hog. Whether the old man will climb the tree in leg, or the hog will tear the seat out of the old man's pants, remains for this campaign to decide. But however that may be, the Democracy proposes to get a few of the melons.

A FINE SPEECH.

Mammoth Audience and Enthusiasm, and Most Excellent Music by Three Bands of the County.

E. E. Deshaugh, our popular candidate for Representative, had a glorious meeting at Navarre last evening. The evening was far from being passed but never in the history of the Navarre rink did it hold such a large and enthusiastic audience. Republicans were out in full force as well as Democrats and the speaker's remarks were applauded vigorously and frequently. The Navarre band, the New Republic band and the Canton City band rendered most excellent music. The members of these organizations have cause to congratulate themselves on the progress they have made.

DESPERATE REPUBLICANS.

Resort to More Dishonorable Means to Injure Campbell.

One of the desperate measures resorted to by the Foraker machine at Columbus to injure Hon. James E. Campbell is that of sending to the manufacturers throughout the state a secret circular letter, charging Mr. Campbell, while in Congress, voted to abolish all patent laws. The circulars have been widely distributed in Canton. It is safe to say every manufacturer and one Mr. Joseph Dick, of the Dick Agricultural works, and Mr. John Banner, of the Banner Manufacturing Company, have received such a circular. They are too old to be caught by any such despicable scheme.

The Hops Last Salute.
